Sealcoating Paving CrackFilling Striping

FRANK'S FORUM

Welcome to the first edition of our newsletter. We have been working to get this accomplished for almost forty years. Well, maybe that's a bit of a stretch. However, we really are a little behind the curve on this really important item on our agenda. That having been said, we will move ahead and try to provide an interesting and informative publication.

My wife Judy and I have had a long and satisfying relationship with many of our customers and friends. Many of you know our son and daughter who both started hand painting tennis courts with us as soon as they could paint by numbers. Kevin graduated from Salve Regina College and is responsible for many of the daily operations of the business. Cheryl has degrees from the University of Rhode Island and Bryant College and is in charge of accounting. We are very proud of both of our children and are pleased that they have remained with the family business.

We look forward to the challenges that affect both our family business and our industry as a whole, and are confident that we can continue to provide the quality of products and services that you have come to expect from us. — Frank

Every day golfers are enticed with advertising for the newest, longest most accurate golf clubs and balls. All are "guaranteed" to instantly improve our game with little or no effort on our part. Somehow new equipment has never improved my golf game very much. Maybe the new technology isn't the complete answer.

Arnie and Jack were pretty good with the golf clubs available at the time. Would they have been better with today's newer and better equipment? Could they match up with Tiger, Phil and Ernie? Who knows?

We do know what has made them all successful on and off the golf course. They all share the same arduous work ethic. Maybe the old saying "practice makes perfect" still applies today. I wonder if it will work for me? Maybe I should head for the golf course.

NASHVILLE NOTES

The National Pavement Expo, attended by Kevin Clynes and Scott Bozek, was interesting and informative. Drastic changes in the pavement maintenance industry over the last few years have resulted in tremendous price increases in raw materials. At the same time shortages of coal tar have resulted in our suppliers being out of product during the busiest time of the year. Part of the solution will eventually be a nationwide changeover to asphalt emulsion pavement sealers.

The quality of the asphalt emulsions is being improved and will soon be on par with the conventional coal tar sealers. With the increasing prices for asphalt and other materials it is now more important than ever to maintain your parking lot while repair costs are manageable. With the limited amount of snow this year hopefully there will be money available to keep your lot in tip top shape.

As always our goal will be to provide the best available pavement maintenance products at a fair and reasonable cost.
